

County Assessor Meyer threatens to 'scuttle' tax update

By Bob Reeves
Star Staff Writer

Feisty Fritz Meyer, Lancaster County assessor, told county commissioners Friday that if they fail to grant his 1977-78 budget request he will "scuttle" the property tax update.

Last year he told them the update would not be completed if they didn't give him every cent he wanted in his budget. They didn't, and he kept his promise.

Now he is approaching the January 1, 1978, deadline imposed by the state for all counties to revise assessed property values. If the program is not completed by then, the county will suffer a penalty of lost state reimbursements.

State Tax Commissioner Bill Peters said the law is unclear as to whether only the county government or all agencies, such as school districts, supported by county taxes will be penalized. The loss in personal property tax reimbursements would be 10% the first year and 20% in 1979 if the update is not finished.

This year Meyer is asking for $489,155, an increase of more than $70,000 over last year. This includes $45,000 specifically to review and adjust property values.

Meyer called this a "minimal amount" to finish the job he has been working on for three years. The $45,000 will pay the salaries of a $20,000 per year appraiser and support staff.

"You've been fighting me," he told commissioners. "It's to your advantage to get (the reassessment) done."

Board Chairman Bruce Hamilton quizzed him about the specifics, which Meyer did not spell out.

On the subject of a cost-of-living increase for county employees, which commissioners have said may have to be eliminated this year, Meyer said: "If you don't give a raise you're the poorest administrators you could ever hope to be."

Meyer recommended a 6% across-the-board raise, and insisted that the money be included in his budget to cover it. The county board's policy of putting such money in a special salary adjustment account to be meted out to departments as needed, Meyer called "illegal."

Meyer obtained an opinion from the county attorney's office indicating that the salary adjustment account is not authorized by state law.

"It's budgeting the right money in the wrong place," said Deputy County Attorney Mike Heavican.

Meyer may use his claim that commissioners are acting illegally as a plank in his platform if he runs for the County Board seat being vacated by Hamilton next year.

Meyer said he is "very seriously considering running" to restore power to elected department heads. "I know 'em all — I would work with the elected officials, but not try to run their offices," he said.

He said the present County Board is trying "to take control" of every county department when they "know nothing" about how the offices are supposed to run.

Meyer's office announced Friday that the total assessed value of all property in the county will be up 8% from last year. This is a greater increase than expected — the average increase is 5 to 6%.

The increase is due largely to new construction and inflated values of personal property and business inventories, Deputy Assessor Bill Martin said.

County Clerk Carl Hartman also had harsh words for the commissioners as they reviewed his $230,547 budget request Friday morning.

The county's current fiscal dilemma — having to make stringent cuts in every budget to stay within the mill levy ceiling — is due to "your error last year when you tried to hold the mill levy down," Hartman told the commissioners.

Hartman insisted that a $7,307 account clerk be added to his staff for the coming year. "We can't get by for another year (without a staff increase)," he said. "We've gotten by for seven years; now it seems like we're being penalized for it."

On other budget items, however, Hartman seemed confused. He could not recall why he had asked for $1,100 for "technical equipment replacement." A figure of $50,000 for data processing he admitted was "a figure drawn out of thin air" to cover unforeseen costs of a personnel payroll system that has yet to be approved by the County Board.

In discussing the county treasurer's $461,940 budget request, Deputy Treasurer Terry Adams pointed out that if county employees do not get the same pay raise as city employees, it could cause flow of personnel from county to city.

The county's employee turnover is already high, Adams asserted, but could be higher if the cost-of-living boost is not granted.

They're old salts now

By Patty Boulter
Star Staff Writer

In the middle of the night Darrin Durand's shells got up and walked away. He knew there were hermit crabs inside the shells, but he didn't expect them to escape en masse.

That was just one of the on-site lessons in marine biology the Southeast High School senior learned on a 12-day study trip to Texas with a Lincoln public schools group. The 20 participants paid their own way and will earn five hours credit for the mobile classroom experience.

Learning about marine life as you find it, instead of in a classroom where you can't see it, makes the lesson so much more meaningful, says Darrin. Barry Bauer, 16, an East High senior who also made the trip, agrees.

The trip to Mustang Island, with Aransas Bay on one side and the Gulf of Mexico on the other, was Darrin's first salt water experience. Barry had been to the Pacific before, but body surfing, not marine biology, kept him busy then.

The Texas coastal area had just been through a shark scare before the high school group arrived. Darrin hoped to bring home a souvenir jaw, but he didn't want to buy one. He got his chance one night when fishermen at the pier hauled in several sand sharks. They gave the smallest of the catch, a three-footer, to Darrin. He put his prize in the sand outside his tent to dry that night, only to awake the next morning to find it gone. He figures the gulls made off with it.

Scavenger sea gulls hovered over the camp area waiting for food scraps and handouts. "You think they're beautiful when you first see them," Darrin said. "But by the time you leave you learn to hate them."

By day the group seined the bay and marsh areas for marine life. Calico crabs, puff fish, squid, jellyfish, Portugese men-of-war and other sorts were hauled in for examination. Most were returned to their sea homes; others are now swimming in formaldehyde, preserved as specimens for future biology students back home.

By night there were fish to be eaten. Darrin tasted his first — and what he says is his last — shrimp one evening. In between he had 74 others. Still, he lost out in the chug-a-shrimp contest. Greg Ford managed to consume 93 of the raw, pink things.

Home long enough that the last grains of sand have finally worked their way out of sneakers and jeans, Darrin and Barry both talk about applying to be assistants for next year's trip.

Despite smaller deficit, postal rates may rise

Washington (AP) — The Postal Service announced Friday that it is losing money at a slower pace than at almost any time since it was reorganized in 1971, but it plans action soon to increase postal rates again.

The deficit for the year ending June 30 was about $50 million, Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar announced. "Compared to the $1.2 billion deficit in fiscal 1976, this is real progress," he said.

Bailar described the Postal Service's financial condition as better than at any time since it was created in the 1971 postal reorganization.

But he said that because "inflation continues to plague the Postal Service," the mail agency will need to take steps soon to increase rates next year.

The Postal Service board of governors is expected next week to propose increasing the first-class letter rate from the present 13 cents to 16 cents. The increase could not take effect until the Postal Rate Commission, an independent body, holds up to 10 months of hearings.

Bailar, defending the rate increase, said the agency faces pay increases soon that are built into existing labor agreements as well as such other unavoidable cost increases as rising fuel costs.

He said that when the new rates are effective early next year, over two years will have passed since the last increase in first-class rates. "I think that is evidence that the Postal Service is successfully managing its budget and controlling cost as much as possible," he said.

At one time postal managers had expected to lose about $1 billion in the year ended June 30. But they have periodically revised this estimate downward.

The $50 million deficit compares to average deficits of almost $500 million in the five previous years and red ink averaging higher than $1 billion in each of the two previous years. The only July 1-June 30 period in which the deficit was lower than in the year just ended was fiscal 1973, when losses were $13 million.

The improved financial results came after Bailar ordered that many job vacancies be filled by transferring workers not needed in their present posts, rather than by hiring new employees. This policy, which has sparked controversy with the postal unions, has reduced the work force to 657,000 persons, or 84,000 less than it was before postal reorganization in 1971.

The postmaster general contended this reduction has not hurt service, a view disputed by the labor unions, many members of Congress and others.

Bailar said Postal Service statistics show that on-time delivery was as frequent during the last year as at any time during the six years.

"The Postal Service delivered 96 per cent of mail eligible for overnight delivery on time and 94 per cent of mail designated for second- and third-day delivery," the announcement said.

In 1971, the old Post Office Department was replaced by a new agency that was supposed to end politics in the mail service and bring businesslike methods to it.

Dyas is wondering if support persists

By Don Walton
Star Staff Writer

In his own mind, Hess Dyas knows that he wants to run for Congress again next year — but he hasn't decided yet whether he will.

"I've spent a lot of people's money, time and energy" in two previous campaigns for national office, Dyas reflected Friday.

"The question is whether I have also spent their enthusiasm."

So, at age 40, the former Democratic state chairman, who lost two heartbreakers in the last two election years, is going to go back to his supporters once again to see if they want him — that is, really want him — to run again.

"I would need a really enthusiastic response," Dyas acknowledged. "But I want everyone, including myself, to know that I'm not trying to manufacture that enthusiasm. It has to be there on its own."

Dyas ran for the First District seat in the House in 1974, taking Republican incumbent Charles Thone to the wire. It was the best Democratic showing since Clair Callan won the seat for a single term in 1964.

Last year, Dyas switched goals and bid for a seat in the U.S. Senate — a decision which he now regrets.

Fueled by massive support in Omaha, Republican-turned-Democrat Edward Zorinsky edged Dyas in the primary and marched on to victory last November.

"That was a mistake on my part," Dyas says today.

After investing time, effort and money in a 1974 congressional race which vastly improved his political prospects in the First District, Dyas "just decided to run for the Senate" in 1976.

"Some people have since told me that they resented that and I don't blame them. If I had it to do over, I would have run for the House."

And that's exactly what he has building in his mind now — another run at the First District post.

The seat will be wide open next year if Thone decides to run for governor.

But Dyas said that doesn't really matter.

If he decides to enter the contest, "it will make no difference to me whether Thone is in or out, or who is on the Democratic ticket."

The earliest entry so far is Lancaster County Commissioner H. Bruce Hamilton, a Democrat. State Sen. Douglas Bereuter of Utica is expected to leap soon into the Republican swim.

Clad in a sports shirt and blue jeans, Dyas sipped coffee Friday and talked candidly about himself.

"I'm trying to be honest with myself," he sighed.

"I know I am more concerned and more committed and care more about being involved that I ever have been. I feel more strongly about things than ever before."

Hess Dyas

... wants to run again.

"I know I'm up for it. I'm willing to work harder than I've ever worked before, but I have to know if other people are willing to do that also."

"If I find genuine enthusiasm of their part, I'll go. If not, I'll work for someone else. I'm not quitting."

How about his morning-after remarks in May of 1976 that he was ready to bow out of political activity as a candidate for office?

"The reflections of a guy who was tired and feeling sorry for himself," Dyas admits.

The simple fact is that "I would like to run again and I would like to be a congressman from the First District," he said.

So, Dyas said, he'll be talking to old supporters this summer and fall, and make his decision later.

If the answer is no, he thinks he can adjust to it.

"You don't have to be a congressman to do things about your concerns," he noted. "I know that's obvious, but it's just dawning on me."

Widow lives in tent; benefits challenged

Algonac, Mich. (UPI) — A widow whose family has been forced to live in a tent had some more bad news Friday for her six children — their father may have been married to another woman.

Adelaida True, 36, threatened with eviction from the state park where the family has been camping out, was informed of a rival claim for the veterans' survivor benefits accrued by her late husband — income she needs to qualify for a home mortgage.

"I've always tried to make my children remember the best things about their father, but this is too much," Mrs. True said.

The Philippines-born woman is now living on welfare, Social Security and a meager income from a part-time job. She said she and her husband, Frederick, an Air Force veteran, were separated at the time of his death in 1975, but not divorced.

Mrs. True said she had no knowledge of any second marriage until informed of the rival claim by the Veterans Administration. She said it was the first time, after nearly a year of fruitless correspondence, the VA had explained why it had not provided survivor benefits for the family.

Mrs. True has been unable to rent a home since her family was evicted from its last apartment June 9. The action was taken when the landlord discovered she had three more children than she had indicated.

Since then, she has been unable to find any other landlord willing to rent to such a large family and has been camping out in the Algonac State Park.

Just drifting till the end

Kansas City (AP) — John Dale Reardon was a drifter, a free soul. "Fiddle-footed," his mother called him.

Reardon, a red knapsack on his back, was found shot to death Thursday night near the Liberty Memorial mall, a favorite Kansas City overnight stopping place for the fancy-free.

He was holding a red knapsack, and playing nearby in the grass was his portable radio. He wore blue jeans and a blue denim vest.

He had been shot twice in the back. There was another wound on a wrist.

Police contacted his mother, Mrs. Edith Reardon, in Oklahoma City. She said John had been footloose since he was 19.

"He couldn't take responsibility at all," she said. "But he'd never harm a fly. He'd give you the shirt off his back. I don't know why anyone would want to kill him."

John turned 22 Thursday, the day of his death.

Window is path to girl's safety

Sarasota, Fla. (AP) — Charlotte Grosse scrambled through a window to freedom Friday, 52 hours after she was dragged screaming from a tent during a Girl Scout campout.

The 15-year-old girl made her dash for safety after calling her parents from the sprawling island house where she was being held. Police monitoring the call advised her to "leave the residence any way she could — out a window," authorities said.

She did, and moments later the man charged with her abduction was arrested as he tried to drive away in an expensive, late-model sports car.

Wilfred Arthur Bannister, 33, of Siesta Key, a six-footer with brown, straggly hair, was arrested without resistance. He was expressionless as he was hustled into jail and charged with state counts of kidnaping and involuntary sexual battery.

He was described as a salesman with no criminal record. Charlotte was taken to a local hospital for examination, but was reported in good condition. She was reunited with her family. "They're ecstatic," a friend said.

A police spokesman said the sexual battery charge was not rape, but rather "sexual fondling." Kidnap carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment while sexual battery can mean 30 years in jail.

Bannister was questioned for nearly two hours, but police said they had not determined a motive for the abduction.

About 17 hours after she was dragged from the campground, Charlotte had called her parents from a pay phone and told them her abductor had agreed to free her and she would call again soon.

But the call didn't come soon. When there was no further word that night or all day Thursday, tension and doubt mounted.

Richard and Carol Grosse waited through the silent hours with their other three younger children in their modest home in nearby Nokomis. Neighbors brought in meals.

FBI agents and Sarasota sheriff's deputies continued the search and interviewed a witness to the telephone call who said the abductor may have had a knife or pistol pressed to the girl's abdomen as she talked with her father.

The long-awaited second call came about 10 a.m. Friday. "Charlotte talked to the detectives, said she was all right and was asked if she could get away," said sheriff's spokesman Ray Pilon. "She was told to leave the residence any way she could — out a window. She did it, went next door and called again."

Within minutes, sheriff's deputies rushed to her and arrested Bannister.

The girl's ordeal started with a restless Tuesday night at the Oscar Scherer State Park about 13 miles from the home she escaped from Friday.

"Char was nervous and jumpy all that night," said Virginia Wallace, 15, one of three girls in the tent. "She kept saying, 'something's out there.'"

At dawn, and several "scare" later, a tall man in dark clothing burst into the tent. Charlotte sat up and yelled, "Virginia, it's back!"

The man then grabbed her. Charlotte's sister, Eleanor, 14, shouted, "Oh, my God, it's got her!"

Inflation outlook worsens

Washington (AP) — The government is continuing to lose ground in the battle against inflation, the new economic report from the Carter administration showed Friday.

The report said consumer prices will increase 6.9 per cent this year and 6.1 per cent in 1978, somewhat worse than previously forecast. Just three months ago the administration had predicted an inflation rate of 6.7 per cent for 1977 and 5.6 per cent for 1978.

Looking down the road toward 1982, the Carter administration report projected only a moderate improvement in the rate of inflation. It said prices could still be increasing at more than a 4 per cent annual rate in 1982.

Over-all prices increased 4.8 per cent last year.

While the inflation outlook was somewhat worse than forecast previously, there was an improvement in the administration's projections for unemployment.

It said the nation's jobless rate, which was 6.9 per cent in May, should average 7 per cent this year, and 6.3 per cent in 1978. Its last previous projections in April had forecast an average jobless rate of 7.2 per cent this year and 6.4 per cent in 1978.

By 1982, it said, unemployment could be as low as an average of 4.5 per cent, which would be near the 4 per cent level that is considered the measure of full employment in the economy.

In a related report Friday, the Labor Department said the salaries of white collar workers rose an average of 6.9 per cent in the 12 months ending last March. The U.S.

inflation rate went up 6.4 per cent in the same period.

The department said it was the third biggest salary increase in the 17-year history of its nationwide survey.

The changed economic forecasts were contained in the mid-session review of the 1978 budget that the Carter administration sent to Congress.

Because of the rapid economic growth in the first six months of the year, the administration revised upward to 5.1 per cent its forecast for real growth of the economy this year, as reflected in the Gross National Product. That compares with 4.9 per cent forecast in April.

But the stronger 1977 growth will be reflected in somewhat slower growth next year, down to 5.3 per cent from the 5.6 per cent estimated previously, the administration said.

The administration said that, hypothetically, the government could have budget surpluses of $3.9 billion by 1980, $42.1 billion by 1981 and $75.5 billion by 1982, if the economy grew at a steady 5 per cent rate during the period and if there were no major changes in tax or spending policy.

But it indicated in the report it does not expect such surpluses to occur because of the prospect of legislative changes, including the major tax reform proposal that the administration plans to send to Congress later this year. It gave the same qualification for its outlook for unemployment and inflation in 1982, saying these were hypothetical assumptions rather than forecasts.

Neutron warhead wins vote test

Washington (AP) — Senate supporters of an immediate appropriation for a deadly new nuclear weapon won two test votes Friday after a rare secret debate behind closed doors.

Both votes were close, however, and efforts to forge a compromise will continue during the Independence Day congressional recess. Final action was put off until the senators return on July 11.

Supporters of the weapon, called the neutron bomb, said it would kill soldiers and spare civilians. Opponents said it would risk goading an enemy into the use of even more deadly weapons.

The neutron warhead is designed to kill by radiation and create relatively little of the accompanying heat and blast which account for much of the destruction usually caused by nuclear explosions.

The proposed funds are contained in a bill appropriating $10.3 billion for public works projects and for the Energy Research and Development Administration.

The two votes highlighted 2½ hours of parliamentary maneuvering which followed the Senate's first closed session since aid to Angola was considered in December 1975.

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., argued that money for the warhead should be eliminated.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the public works appropriations subcommittee which approved the funds, offered an amendment to require that the money for the weapon could not be spent until the President had certified it to be in the national interest.

This was approved 43 to 42.

The administration has said Carter will consider between now and Oct. 1 whether to go ahead with plans for the warhead, for which former President Gerald R. Ford first requested funds.

Hatfield then moved to add that the President's decision could be overridden by either House of Congress within 60 days.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., a supporter of the warhead funds, then urged that action by both houses be required to override the President.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who opposed the appropriation, moved to kill Nunn's amendment. The Nunn amendment survived by a vote of 44 to 41. Final votes on the Hatfield and the Nunn proposals were put off until after the recess.

The move to defer final action came after opponents of the device indicated they were ready to filibuster if necessary to keep the other side from winning.

The closed session lasted two hours and 43 minutes. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the session was required to keep secret such information as the range and radius of the Lance missile on which the warhead would be used. The amount of money is also a secret.

Uranium gas leak reported

Pierrelatte, France (UPI) — A "very considerable" leak of radioactive uranium gas occurred Friday at a uranium processing plant in Central France, Police said.

Goodbye, goodbye to Mary

Los Angeles (AP) — In case you're wondering, soap opera character Mary Hartman ended her series Friday by worrying about "waxy yellow buildup" on a kitchen floor, just as she did when the series began.

But she wasn't in the kitchen of the home she once shared with husband Tom. She did the worrying in the home of Fernwood police Sgt. Dennis Foley, with whom she's had an affair.

It marked the 325th and last, the last episode of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," the much-discussed comedy soap opera that producer Norman Lear began on Jan. 5, 1976. It now appears on 120 stations, his office says.

The finale strongly suggested that Mary, played by Louise Lasser, has now become the live-in lover of Foley (Bruce Solomon) after mysteriously vanishing from her home in mythical Fernwood, Ohio, locale of the series.

The show had her estranged from her husband, played by Gregg Kujawa, at the time of her disappearance. But whether she divorces him — and abandons her young daughter — may never be known, known.

The closing episode, taped June 17, was Miss Lasser's last television appearance as Mary Hartman. Lear's office says.

The actress, 38, plans to go on to other film work.

Her five-day-a-week series usually was seen late at night because of its comic but controversial subject matter, which ranged from indecent exposure to impotence, from adultery to religion.

It even had one episode in which a guest in Mary's home, drunk at the time, drowned in a bowl of chicken soup she'd made for him.

Lear, producer of such network hits as "All in the Family" and "Maude," told reporters last April he'd decided to drop the Hartman show at the end of this season but denied its rating had sagged.

"Throughout television's history, hit shows have been allowed to run to the point where they fizzle out," he said. "We didn't want that to be 'Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman's' fate."

At that same April news conference, Miss Lasser denied — as did Lear — she had quit the show. But she conceded the daily taping of it was strenuous.

"It's been a constant sprint," she said. "The strain has been great on all of us, but I've never seen people stretch themselves so. Everyone really sprinted, but it's a question of how much you can sprint without straining a muscle."

Equal opportunity is disputed by appointee

Washington (UPI) — Defying orders to vacate his plush office, a Black Republican former member of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission Friday proclaimed himself as a victim of racial discrimination by President Carter.

Colston A. Lewis, a Richmond, Va., lawyer who was appointed to the commission by Richard Nixon in 1970, ignored Carter's order to move out of his office when his term officially expired at the close of business Thursday.

Sitting behind a big, polished wood desk in his thickly carpeted office, Lewis asked: "What am I supposed to do, just tuck my tail and go back to Virginia?"

He told reporters Carter was trying to evict him prematurely and he threatened to go to court if necessary next week to defend his legal right to remain in office for another 60 days.

White House sources said Lewis was not reappointed by Carter because he disagrees with Chairman Eleanor Holmes Norton, a Carter appointee, and also has become unpopular with civil rights groups.

Age no barrier to horseback riding

By Joanne Farris

Zeke Daniels hadn't ridden in a horserace in almost two years. But he was such a good, steady exercise rider on trainer Antonio Arcodia's two-year-olds that Arcodia gave him a mount in a recent race at Calder Race Course in Florida.

Daniels' ride made him, at 63, the oldest working jockey in the nation. He had no trouble making weight; he tipped the scales at 104 pounds!

Daniels' life is with the horses. He has the temperament for schooling young horses, a combination of patience and firmness. "If I quit doing this, I'd die," he commented.

Two days before Daniels donned racing silks again, Eddie Robart who is 58, got back on a thoroughbred and raced at the same track.

The younger jockeys were amused and delighted at the turn of events, and the jockeys' room custodian remarked that there could not be two athletes in any sport in such good shape for their ages.

My mind goes back to the two competitors in the Montreal Olympics, equestrians both, who were respectively 48 and 61.

Star carrier Joey Milchling

Joey Milchling of Lincoln likes his paper route. He enjoys the work and the tips and compliments he receives from appreciative customers.

A carrier salesman for The Lincoln Star since December, he has increased his route by several customers and has established a reputation for prompt and courteous service.

"Joey is an excellent carrier," says supervisor Charly Vose. "I hope he stays with the Star route as long as possible."

Joey, who will begin attending Goodrich Junior High School next fall, plays right field on a so far undefeated Little Chiefs team.

In his spare time, Joey builds model ships and planes. He also likes to travel and plans to visit Worlds of Fun for the third time this summer.

As to the future, Joey hopes to become a professional baseball player some day.

Pleased with their son's business venture, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Milchling say the route has taught Joey to assume responsibility, helps him to get up early and taught him to budget his time and money.

Cave to reopen, visitors limited

Madrid (UPI) — The caves of Altamira, which contain some of the finest prehistoric wall paintings, will be reopened to the public July 5 after having been closed since last October, tourism officials have announced.

They said the number of visitors will be limited to 500 a day, pending the installation of equipment to keep the temperature and humidity at a constant level.

The caves were closed after officials discovered that the changes in temperature and the humidity generated by up to 4,000 visitors a day were causing serious damage.

Down on the farm

New York — On Feb. 15, 1949, six administrations and nearly three decades ago, the price of wheat was $1.90 a bushel. Earlier this month, in Goodwin, Kansas, wheat fell to $1.64 a bushel. Given inflation, that's only about half what wheat was bringing in 1949, and less than a third of the current parity price, $5.03 a bushel.

There's almost surely worse yet to come for the farmer — and the result could be political disaster for the Democrats and a stubbornly budget-conscious Carter administration.

This year's wheat harvest in Texas and Oklahoma is about finished, with each state bringing in the second largest crop in its history. Harvesting is beginning in Kansas and Colorado and will move north through the wheat belt throughout July, with great expectations everywhere.

By the early days of August, the wheat crop will be in and the best predictions are that it will be the second or third biggest in the nation's history. But the carry-over from last year's ample crop already is about 1.1 billion bushels, and with good growing weather prevailing throughout the world, there's not much hope of absorbing or significantly reducing this year's surplus on the international market. Instead, the total carry-over from the two years probably will be somewhere near two billion bushels — a surplus that is bound to depress wheat prices even further.

In desperation, American farmers are likely to seek increased shipments of food aid abroad, as well as expanded foreign markets. Cheap American surplus grain might therefore depress prices in the developing countries, frustrating their efforts to build up their own agricultural resources.

Even more certainly, American growers faced with rock-bottom prices that deny them anything like a fair return on production costs (about $3.55 a bushel) are likely to turn solidly against an administration — never too popular to begin with — that insists on holding down federal expenditures as its highest priority.

In the farm belt, that means the administration is willing neither to raise the wheat support price (actually a loan level) of $2.25 a bushel nor to invest in an adequate grain reserve that might help maintain market prices.

Obviously, with so much wheat on hand and in prospect, this is the right time for the nation to begin rebuilding the grain reserves that disappeared after Richard Nixon poured almost $3 billion into farm areas in advance of the 1972 elections, paying farmers to withhold 60 million acres of grain land from production; sold 19 million tons of American grain to the Soviet Union in 1972; and took 20 million acres out of production in 1973.

The Carter administration has announced its intention to create a national grain reserve — but one limited at the outset to about eight million tons of wheat, a drop in the bucket to the surplus now in prospect. Senate legislation has embodied this proposal, but in the House, farm legislation makes no mention at all of a grain reserve.

Rep. James Weaver of Oregon has introduced separate legislation to establish a domestic grain reserve of 25 to 35 million tons; a reserve of that size would just about hold the wheat carry-over to its present 1.1 billion bushels. Unfortunately, the administration appears no more likely to accept the Weaver bill than to agree to higher support prices, and for the same reason — it would cost too much money for the budget-cutters to accept. There are nevertheless good reasons why a national grain reserve ought to be developed again. Such a reserve could help, above all, to avert famines like those that so recently struck much of the world.

It could help keep domestic food prices from rising or falling too steeply, and it could keep periods of over-supply from leading to depressed markets and the discouragement of food production abroad. A grain reserve therefore could be a vital factor in fighting inflation and aiding prosperity, both at home and abroad.

Just this month, for example, a panel of food experts convened by the National Research Council reported to President Carter that even though there were no current famines, 450 million to one billion of the world's people remain underfed.

Both in the short-run to avert the ever present danger of bad weather turning food shortages to famine, and in the long-run to eliminate hunger, the panel said, an effective system of food and grain reserves was needed.

As for politics, the way things are going now in the farm belt, some experts on the region think the Democrats stand to lose as many as 40 House seats next year, most of them west of the Mississippi. Since Carter carried nothing in that vicinity himself, such a setback for his party would hardly be a happy augur for 1978.

They should keep the raise but change the system

It comes as no great shock:

This week the House joined the Senate in cancelling a cost-of-living pay raise members of Congress were to receive in October, and House members in a showdown vote also decided to accept the $12,900 salary increase given them in March. The Senate is also considered likely to go along with the earlier raise.

Congress could not in good conscience accept another pay increase later this year after the big raise members received in late winter.

Neither could the Congress be expected to give up that big raise. There are good reasons why it shouldn't back down on the raise issue.

For one thing, the congressional increases are tied to deserved raises for other federal employees. For another, although many people find it hard to identify with the problems of those making $57,000 or so per year, personal and family plans still had been made on the basis of the pay levels which went into effect earlier. For another, Congress kept the other part of a bargain it made with itself and the public by passing a Code of Ethics and limiting outside income. Lastly, members of Congress do deserve raises from time to time. Not having had one in some four years, they might as well accept this one and concentrate instead on changing the system by which their pay levels are established.

This is a politically charged issue: those who voted against the pay rollback will be accused of robbing the taxpayer. Rich members doubtless found it easier to vote for the rollback than poorer members. You can expect the more comfortably set members to be yelling the loudest and pointing fingers at those who voted against the pay rollback.

Politics aside, something should be done about the way Congress is paid. The primary criticism is that the infrequent raises have been obscenely large, and members have been able to accept raises without voting on them.

It's our belief that members of Congress should be paid commensurate with their responsibility and office, also taking into consideration what it costs them to relocate and do their job. But a public relations problem is involved. Under the present system, taxpayers see congressmen accepting a raise which is bigger than the average annual salary of Americans without taking the responsibility of setting that salary level and voting up or down on it.

No system will completely satisfy taxpayers, but the present one does not even come close.

Hang on til sunshine explained

Gov. Jim Exon and Speaker of the Legislature Roland Luedtke are offering good advice to public officials who are protesting the state's new "sunshine law."

The law, officially known as the Nebraska Political Accountability and Disclosure Act, took effect Friday. It requires certain government officials, both appointed and elected, to file financial disclosure statements and it regulates campaign financing and lobbying. Members of two county planning commissions have resigned their posts, complaining that the disclosure provisions are unfair and unnecessary.

Both Exon and Luedtke are advising other officials unhappy with what they believe the law requires to not quit their offices until they have a thorough understanding of the law's provisions. The governor and speaker pointed out that the Legislature may make some changes in the law before reports required by it are due next April, and they noted that the commission which administers the law may adopt rules which will eliminate some grievances.

There is some confusion over what the law requires. The state attorney general may clear up some of that confusion in the near future, and the Legislature is almost certain to make some changes when it meets in 1978.

In the meantime, public officials who may not understand the law and those who are offended by it ought to sit tight. Nothing will be gained by quitting prematurely in protest of provisions which may not apply or are misunderstood.

In a wire service interview this week, Luedtke noted something which should be remembered by public officials and those they serve: "The law does and should make a matter of record the business affiliations of some of officeholders. But it is not going to disclose how much money you have in the bank or what your property or your household goods are worth; but the landholdings of planning commission members, for example, should be a matter of record."

Right you are, senator. Public officials ought to make every effort to find out exactly what the law requires of them. Then, if they can't take what appear to be reasonable disclosure provisions, they can quit in protest.

Furthermore, the law may need some changes, but it shouldn't be gutted, as some senators have in mind. Disclosure provisions may discourage some people from holding office, but local governments will survive nevertheless; more important, respect for politics and government will be encouraged because of the law.

Editor is upheld over columnist

Washington — As the watchdog press relentlessly pursues official scandals, big and small, questions inevitably are raised about its own purity. Are there news people with conflicts of interest that taint the product?

Rep. David Obey (D-Wis.), whose commission wrote the new House ethics rules, is toying with the idea of requiring financial disclosure by reporters who cover Congress, if it can be done constitutionally. Within the press itself, the four major journalistic organizations are pressing for a code of ethics that will apply to syndicated columnists.

This concern figures in a dispute between an editor and a columnist that — like most of the news business's internal squabbles — has been given little publicity. The columnist is William F. Buckley, a leading exponent of the conservative view, and Gilbert Cranberg, editor of the editorial pages of the Des Moines Register and Tribune.

Several months ago, Cranberg dropped the Buckley column from the Tribune. He explained in an editorial that the decision was based mainly on a concern that Buckley's business interests made it difficult if not impossible for him to write on a number of subjects without a real or apparent conflict of interest.

Cranberg told Tribune readers that the paper's code of ethics prohibits employees from writing about matters in which they have financial or organizational interests, and that it was felt that syndicated contributors should be held to the same standard. So Buckley was out and another conservative columnist, James J. Kilpatrick, was in.

So far as the public was concerned, the case closed there. But Cranberg and Buckley pursue the issue in an illuminating exchange in the current issue of Masthead, the journal of the National Conference of Editorial Writers.

There, Cranberg says his main problem was Buckley's holdings in the Catawba Corporation, a family concern that, he says, has ties to companies with extensive natural gas, mineral and oil interests. Because of Buckley's partial ownership of Catawba, Cranberg declares, he has a conflict of interest in writing about energy, environmental protection, taxation as it applies to the oil industry and similar subjects.

Buckley, says Cranberg, "has been unwilling to disclose his interests in energy to readers or editors when he writes about energy-related subjects."

Buckley

... 'opinion salesman' He notes some of Buckley's other business interests and concludes:

"Perhaps there is a place for entrepreneur-journalists who are careless about appearances of conflict of interests, but the place is not on the Tribune's editorial page."

Buckley fires back with his familiar polemic flourishes. He starts by citing instances in which, he says, he took positions in columns that ran counter to his own interests.

He notes that columnists, unlike reporters, are "opinion salesmen."

hired for "their ability not so much to report as to plead." And he suggests that when an editor interposes himself between readers and a columnist, he goes "a long way" from a protective relationship to those readers, toward a totalitarian relationship with them.

Stripped of invective, Buckley's response seems to center on the assertion that, whatever his outside interests, a columnist should be judged on the merits and consistency of his stated positions. "We all know," he says, "that Milton was an awful religious bigot, but that does not make his 'Areopagitica' less persuasive."

It is a lively little encounter between a pair of respected journalists. And it probably isn't over.

So far, the public has been the main loser. Readers of the Tribune have been deprived of Buckley's views, which are interesting and entertaining even when less than convincing. Readers of newspapers which publish Buckley's column are denied information about interests he has that they should know about.

Both these results are unfortunate. But on balance, I must agree with Cranberg. Buckley owes it to his readers to tell them about interests he has that might raise questions in their minds.

New National: people's theater

Anthony Lewis

London — One of the civilizing elements in the life of great cities has been the place of casual encounter — the Roman piazza, the Paris cafe — where people talk and drink and in their mass provide each other's entertainment. If modern cities have an inhuman feeling, one reason may be that too few places in them invite pause or social mingling; all is busy, swift, isolated.

London has more than its share of sterile modernity, the office towers that disfigure the skyline. But one new building in London proves that contemporary architecture can be humane — can encourage people to relax and connect. That is the National Theater, on the south bank of the Thames.

Theaters are not usually made for strolling and reading and chatting. What sane New Yorker would arrange to meet a friend at a theater two hours before a performance? It is enough to survive the orangeade and the fumes and the cramped lobbies at intermissions.

But come to the National Theater here an hour or two before curtain, and the place is alive. In the ground-floor lobby and at half a dozen other levels — upper foyers, balconies, outdoor platforms overlooking the river — people are walking or sitting with a drink and a sandwich. There are bars and buffet counters here and there, and book stalls where you can buy a book or a newspaper or the text of the play you are about to see. A restaurant upstairs stays open after the play.

About an hour before curtain, the National has what it calls Foyer Music. A small group performs in the downstairs lobby, a different one each evening. In the last month a wind octet has played Mozart and Beethoven, a brass quintet Gabrieli, there have been folk singers, a modern jazz trio, a pianola. It is all free, and you do not need a theater ticket to be there.

For the non-professional visitor to the National, the adjective that springs to mind to describe it is, curiously, political. This is a democratic building.

It is a large structure, housing three separate theaters; but it entirely avoids the grandiosity of, say, the Kennedy Center in Washington. From across the river one sees not a box but a series of strong horizontal lines and dramatic towers.

The walls inside and out are rough concrete, with little decoration. The building does not have the formal elegance of a Lincoln Center. What it does have is classless dignity and sense of occasion. And along with severity there is intimacy, the great spaces outside the auditoriums broken up by stairs and levels so that the visitor finds his corner and never feels the claustrophobia of a large crowded room.

It is the policy of the theater management as it was the hope of the architect to make the National a place for the non-affluent. Ticket prices are low even by British standards — from $1.75 to a top just under $8. And the audiences do seem more varied in dress and age than in ordinary London theaters.

The National has had a good deal of criticism since its new building opened last year. Some have called the company's director, Sir Peter Hall, extravagant. His first choice of plays was much-criticized. Some of the new stage machinery is still not working. The company has had to make annoying economies, such as reducing the hours the building is open to the public.

To an outsider the criticism and the problems seem trivial. Here is a company of Paul Scofield and Sir John Gielgud and dozens of others who, Noel Coward said, "could act their way through the Albanian telephone directory."

But Sir Denis Lasdun's building is the reason for celebration. For a hundred years Britain resisted proposals for a National Theater — a fact rightly seen by Shaw and others as a symbol of philistinism. Now it has a building to match the great tradition of English drama: provocative, daring, accessible to all.

Mystery of four decades

Amelia Earhart and her navigator, Fred J. Noonan, disappeared over the Pacific 40 years ago Saturday, July 2. Miss Earhart had been the first woman to make a solo flight across the Atlantic, in 1932, and she would have been the first woman to circumnavigate the world by airplane if her 1937 flight had not been cut short by tragedy.

The greatest rescue search in the history of aviation was made, but no trace of Earhart, Noonan or their twin-engine Lockheed Electra was ever found. To this day, their last flight remains shrouded in mystery. Were they on a secret reconnaissance mission for the government? Were they captured and imprisoned or murdered by the Japanese? Both possibilities have been suggested by unofficial investigators. No one knows for sure. But even Amelia's mother doubted the official version of her death. "I am convinced she was on some sort of a government mission, probably on verbal orders," Mrs. Earhart said in 1949.

Paul Briand Jr., author of "Daughter of the Sky," an Earhart biography, has written that information in a classified FBI file on Amelia Earhart suggests that she and Noonan were alive in Japan after the war. Journalist Pete Hamill tried to explain the persistence of rumors that Earhart may still be alive. "Like male heroes who were thought to live on after death . . ." he wrote in Ms. magazine last fall, "she fulfilled some need in us for the heroic spirit, and so we cannot quite bear to believe that she is gone."

Today, the spirit of Amelia Earhart lives on in the small but growing number of female commercial pilots, the thousands of women who have enlisted in the Air Force or enrolled in the Air Force Academy, and the thousands more who have obtained private pilot licenses.

For each of them there is special meaning in the words written by Miss Earhart 40 years ago: "Women must try to do things as men have tried. When they fail, their failure must be but a challenge to others."

The loyal opposition

Jack Anderson

Washington — Since the Republicans laid down the controls of government, the leaders who dominated the headlines a year ago have moved quietly out of the spotlight. Our reporters, Larry KRAFTOWITZ and Jane Winebrenner, have tracked many of them down to find out what they're doing and how they feel about their successors.

Gerald Ford, of course, has gone out to pasture in Palm Springs, Calif. He is growing restless with golf and is talking about a rematch with President Jimmy Carter in 1980. The former President, meanwhile, keeps in touch with his key aides.

For example, he frequently telephones his former staff chief, Richard Cheney, who is back with his old investment firm, Bradley, Woods and Company. Cheney said it was too early for Ford to make a political move. "He's not gonna jump one way or the other (now)," Cheney told us.

Another former White House insider, Robert Hartmann, also speaks to Ford regularly, although "I don't call him up every morning like I used to," Hartmann has received a two-year grant from Stanford University to write a book about the 25th Amendment and Ford's unique succession to power. Hartmann, incidentally, has no great quarrel with President Carter's domestic policies but questions whether the new President has the congressional support he will need.

The controversial, foot-in-mouth Earl Butz, former secretary of agriculture, is now lecturing around the country and teaching on an informal basis at Purdue University. Butz told us he isn't surprised at Carter's emphasis on budget balancing. "He has two hard-nosed, practical businessmen — (Budget Director) Bert Lance and (Treasury Secretary) Mike Blumenthal," said Butz. "They're practical men with their feet on the ground."

Another blunt-spoken Ford man, ex-Treasury Secretary William Simon, is now a senior advisor to the New York management consulting firm of Booz, Allen and Hamilton International. He described President Carter's energy policy as "extremely dangerous." The emphasis is on conservation. "It doesn't deal with production one iota," he said.

Simon also challenged Carter's economics. "President Carter said we need more capital formation," snorted Simon. "You don't do that by taxing business $30 billion for Social Security taxes. That's fuzzy thinking on his part."

Ford's former chief economic adviser, Alan Greenspan, now forecasts economic developments through his own firm, Townsend-Greenspan and Company. According to Greenspan, Carter still hasn't won the confidence of the business community. "Carter has changed too often. They don't as yet trust his judgment."

New Rulo bridge to aid transport of coal trains

Rulo (AP) — Sometime in the next few weeks, a 90-year-old steel railroad bridge across the Missouri River here between Missouri and Nebraska will be lifted from its high granite piers.

Ten, in careful coordination, two new heavy steel spans, being fabricated on the ground on either side of the river, will be lifted onto the piers.

Special planning and equipment will result in the rail line being shut down 48 hours or less.

The new and heavier bridge will enable the Burlington Northern railroad to use the Rulo crossing to move its new unitized coal trains from Colorado and Wyoming by a shorter route into Missouri.

These trains will be carrying low sulfur coal to Middle West utilities.

Ted Aadland, superintendent of Hensel-Philips Co., Greeley, Colo., which has the $6.7 million contract for the bridge switch operation, said there would be a minimum of interference with rail traffic and also with barge traffic on the river under the bridge.

Each bridge section is 375 feet long and weighs 1,200 tons. In lifting them into place, the construction firm will erect falsework towers on barges placed immediately upstream and downstream from the bridge. The new bridge sections will be lifted onto the falsework on the upstream side. Then the old bridge will be shifted onto the falsework on the downstream side. Next the new bridge will slide into place on the old piers. Within 48 hours, rail traffic will be resumed.

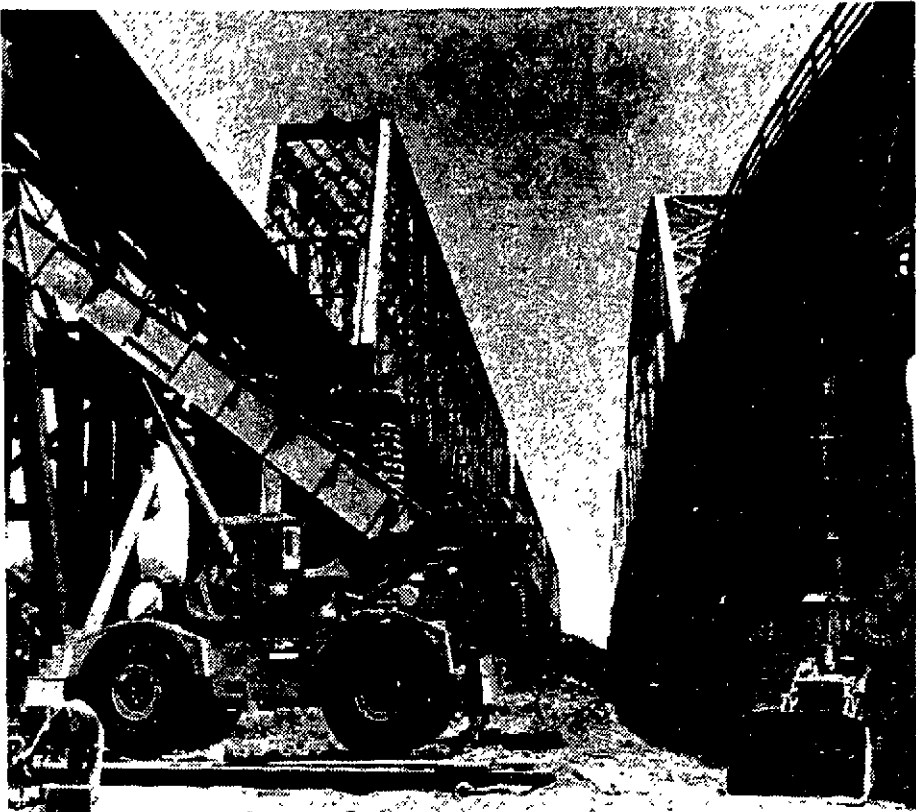

The new bridge, including approaches, will be 1,863 feet in length. The bridge, erected in 1887 at a cost of $400,000, was fabricated in England and assembled at the site here.

The unitized coal trains which will cross the new span will each consist of 110 cars, each car carrying 100 tons of coal. That is 22 million pounds of low sulfur coal per train. Five diesel locomotives will haul each train.

Much of the coal will go by rail to Missouri utilities, such as those at Kansas City and St. Joseph. Some will continue by rail across Missouri where it will be moved by barge to utility plants on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers.

Bolstering the carrying capacity of the Rulo bridge will allow the Burlington also to move heavier grain trains across the Missouri at this point. At present, because of weight limits on the old span, only light grain cars and empty coal trains move across the span.

The project is slated for completion in December.

Second lawsuit filed

Hastings (AP) — Four property owners who are seeking to block annexation by the city of three adjacent school districts have filed a second lawsuit in Adams County District Court.

The suit seeks to halt annexation proceedings of the 15th, 60th and Adams Central districts until a referendum asked for in another suit can be held. Both suits were filed by John Halloran, Kenneth Bohlen, Eugene Krabel and Leroy Samuelson, residents of the areas ordered annexed.

Housing grant okayed

Omaha (AP) — The Santee Sioux Tribal Housing Authority of Santee has been awarded a $376,000 Department of Housing and Urban Development contract for modernizing low-rent public housing, Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., has announced.

Valmont plans cutback

Valley (AP) — With demand for center pivot irrigation systems slackening and lower earnings projected, Valmont Industries, Inc., plans a cutback in employees from 1,500 to 1,350, the firm announced Friday. The work force will be trimmed by July 8, the firm said.

Valmont issued a release June 3 predicting lower second quarter earnings. The firm blamed the lowering demand for center pivot irrigation systems on "extremely low commodity prices in major sectors of the farm economy."

Armstrong appointed

Omaha (AP) — Saying "I'm ending the speculation right now," Mayor Al Veys Friday named Robert Armstrong, former director of the city office of management and budget, to be director of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Agency. Armstrong has been serving as an assistant to the mayor.

Stored corn lost

Milford (UPI) — Approximately 500,000 bushels of corn were destroyed here Thursday night when fire destroyed the older Farmland Co-op elevator. Authorities said the elevator and its contents were a complete loss.

Fire Chief Robert Boshart said the cause of the fire was still not known.

Highway safety message told in statistics

Associated Press

The Nebraska Highway Safety Program is waging a statewide media campaign during July and August to make drivers safety conscious.

Those are the two months statistics show are the deadliest on Nebraska highways.

In a related message, Gov. J. James Exon Friday urged motorists to drive carefully during the July 4 weekend. He especially cautioned drivers who might drink and young drivers.

Statistics show 107 people were killed in traffic accidents on Nebraska highways during July and August last year. That figure represents 27% of all traffic deaths in the state in 1976.

Of the two months, August seems to be the worse for traffic fatalities. Sixty-seven highway fatalities were reported during August 1976, the largest number of traffic

Patrol will be watching you closely

Grand Island (UPI) — The Nebraska State Patrol plans to use "spies in the sky" or "bears in the air" to help curb the death toll on the state's highways this 4th of July weekend.

Capt. Wayne French of Grand Island, Troop C Commander, said the patrol will step up surveillance all three days of the holiday weekend.

"We will have all the people out that we can have, and still maintain coverage during the week as well," he said. In addition, the patrol will be using aircraft — "spies in the sky" in CB lingo — to watch traffic.

Escape attempt charges filed against inmates

Two inmates of the Nebraska Penal Complex who allegedly tried to escape from the Reformatory April 30 were bound over to Lancaster County District Court on attempted escape charges Friday.

Duane Fuller and George Reeves, both 21, also were arraigned on charges of being a habitual criminal. County Judge Robert Camp ordered the pair to be arraigned in the higher court July 29, following a preliminary hearing on the charges.

According to prison officials, Fuller was seen by a guard as he allegedly attempted to crawl into a steam tunnel at the Reformatory from a hole in the back of his cell. The hole, they said, was opened when a steel plate covering the hole was removed. Guards also found a rope of braided sheets in the cell, shared by the pair officials said.

Fuller was sentenced to the Penal Complex from Saunders County on charges of second offense no account check and escape from custody.

Reeves was sentenced April 7, 1977, from Dodge County on charges of receiving stolen property and escape from custody.

Humane Society call ends in 5 arrests

Omaha (AP) — Five persons were arrested, a policeman's cheek was cut when a 45-year-old woman punched him, and another policeman was hit on the lip by a flying object in a neighborhood disturbance Thursday.

The disturbance began when a Nebraska Humane Society officer attempted to issue a citation to a woman for letting her female dog, which was in heat, run loose, authorities said.

As two police officers, who were called when the woman refused to give her name, left, they saw a youth in the Humane Society truck, police said.

The officers said they discovered a traffic warrant was on file for the youth, Dana Fleming, 18, but as they were arresting him, he and officer James Orr began wrestling.

A crowd of about 50 persons gathered, and Orr called twice for help over his radio, police said.

In the ensuing disturbance, police said, Orr, 34, suffered cuts on his arms and hands; officer Robert Fox, 33, was hit by the youth's mother; and officer Floyd Batman was struck by a flying object.

Authorities said Fleming was charged with assaulting or resisting a police officer. His mother, who told police she was only trying to break up the fight between Orr and her son, was booked on suspicion of misdemeanor assault and battery.

Three other persons were booked on suspicion of disorderly conduct, police said.

Wheat harvest pace quickens

A few farmers north of I-80 in Nebraska are beginning to do some wheat cutting, while the first tier of counties along the southern edge of the state is nearing completion of the wheat harvest.

Yields are improving slightly with most points reporting 40 bushels per acre or more. Test weights are running above 60 lbs. in most locations.

Preliminary tests for protein are generally at 12% or higher which is considered very good.

The pace of the harvest in the southwest is picking up with elevators at Imperial accepting 95,000 bushels of wheat June 30. Indianola received 50,000 bushels in two days, while at Lebanon 27,000 bushels were received in two days.

Lebanon, Stratton and Benkelman's harvests are about 50% complete with combines just beginning the harvest south of Ogallala and near Imperial Friday.

General cutting is expected in the Panhandle's Grant area July 3 through 5th. The State Department of Labor will open its labor office at Chappell in the old bank building on U.S. 30 July 5.

Gas refused to some customers

Fremont (UPI) — Nebraska Natural Gas Co. is refusing temporarily to provide natural gas service to new customers in 16 communities in western Nebraska.

Oliver Teden, president of the Fremont-based retail distribution firm, Friday said the no-growth policy was adopted in early June. "We hope it's a temporary thing," he said.

The reason for the no-growth policy is that demand for natural gas is exceeding supply capacity, he said.

Nebraska Natural Gas has hired consultants to study the problem. Teden said, and a report outlining possible solutions is expected soon.

The communities notified of the no-growth policy are Maxwell, Brady, Gothenburg, Cozad, Elwood, Lexington, Overton, Elm Creek, Odessa, Nelson, Fairfield, Guide Rock, Red Cloud, Naponee, Franklin and Inavale.

Teden said Nebraska Natural Gas buys gas at wholesale from Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Co. of Hastings.

Attorney asks that youths be tried together

Grand Island (AP) — Hall County Atty. Grimmer has formally asked that two 16-year-old Grand Island youths stand trial together on murder charges in the death of businessman Donald Beery Jr.

Grimmer made his request in a motion filed in county district court.

The prosecutor says in the motion that George Lanzendorf and Bernard Schaeffer should be tried together because they allegedly participated together in the series of events that led to the shooting of Beery. Beery's bullet-riddled body was found in a rural area of the county. He had been shot 16 or 17 times, authorities said.

Lanzendorf's attorney, Bill Blackburn, said he will oppose Grimmer's request to try the two together. Schaeffer's attorney, Tom Wagoner, said he has not decided whether to oppose it.

Mitchell man charged with shooting wife

Gering (AP) — A rural Mitchell man was charged Friday with felonious assault in the shooting of his wife Thursday night.

Carroll E. Wagner is being held in Scotts Bluff County jail in lieu of $10,000 bond after his arraignment, according to County Atty. Brian Silverman.

Dora Lee Wagner was shot with a shotgun outside the Wagner home, Sheriff David Schieve said. She was in serious condition in a Scottsbluff hospital after a three-to-four-hour operation Friday a hospital spokesman said.

Fewer leaving Beatrice Center since fund delay

Beatrice (AP) — A delay in getting state funds reduced the number of retarded persons to leave the Beatrice State Developmental Center during the last fiscal year, according to Douglas County Commissioner Mike Albert.

Albert, chairman of the Eastern Nebraska Human Services Agency, said 10 persons were brought back from the center, fewer than planned.

The delay in getting the state funds was primarily responsible, he said.

The agency supervises the Eastern Nebraska Community Office of Retardation (ENOCR).

Harry Naasz, an ENOCR staff member, said nine of the 10 persons brought back from the center last year were brought back in the past two months. He said the average stay in Beatrice was 20 years.

Douglas Pearson

Peru State president on vacation

Omaha (AP) — Peru State College President Douglas Pearson said Friday he has taken a vacation to decide whether to remain as head of the school.

"I have taken a vacation and am considering my options," Pearson said in a telephone call to the Associated Press. He declined to say where he had gone, but added that he will be back in Nebraska Tuesday, probably with a decision.

Pearson met with several members of the State College Board of Trustees in Lincoln this week. Chairman Henry Ley issued a statement Thursday saying Pearson was considering resigning.

Pearson asked the college faculty for a vote of confidence Monday and said that if the results went against him he would resign.

He would not talk on the record Friday about the results of the vote of confidence.

"I don't want to go into a great deal of detail," Pearson said. "All I want to say is that I'm considering my options."

Nor would he talk on the record about the controversy surrounding him on the Peru State campus. "I'm not interested in engaging in personalities in the media," he said.

Pied Pipers do enchant kids

The Pied Piper of Hamelin made a bargain with the Lord Mayor to rid the town of rats. Sure enough, he did, but then he played a tune that enticed away all the town's children.

The Pied Pipers of Hastings have made a different bargain with the Hastings City Council.

They have promised to turn the city's young people on to some mind-expanding experiences, but they haven't stolen a single kid yet.

In Hastings, the Pied Pipers, under the direction of Tom Gellatly and Mark Hoeger, conduct free workshops in creative dramatics for kids 4 through 12. The nine-year-old program is jointly sponsored by the city and the Nebraska Arts Council.

Pantomime and sensory awareness exercises set the stage for original films and plays, written and produced by the children.

During the summer, the troupe works its magic over a four-state area with an open-air "comedy theater."

Gellatly, 30, the full-time director, spends a good part of each winter drumming up business for the summer shows.

Next fall, he hopes to take his workshops into schools across the state.

The "comedy theater" is a collage of short plays based on fairy tales and jokes, songs and audience-participation games.

"Audience involvement is what makes it fun," says Barb Frank, 21, who joined the group while a high school student in Hastings.

She has performed with the Brownville Village Theater, but prefers clowning for kids. "I love their facial expressions," she says.

The fast-paced performance demands versatility. Gellatly assumes such diverse roles as the Troll in the Three Billy Goats Gruff, a baby who refuses to go to sleep, and Snow White's brother Rose Red.

In the Pied Pipers' version of the classic tale, Snow White is a young man who lives with his brother in a house in the woods. They meet a female dwarf with a log caught in her beard and a mild-mannered bear who turns into an ugly princess (but a wealthy one) and marries Snow White, leaving Rose Red in the lurch.

Snow White is played by Mark Willy, 21, also from Hastings. A senior in drama and psychology at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, he has been with the Pied Pipers for six years.

"We have more talent each year," he says. "It's a good opportunity to bring drama to little towns."

Watching the Pied Pipers is like watching children at play. There is much shouting and growling, exaggerated gestures and gross emotion. Even 3-year-olds find plenty to identify with.

But the actors throw in enough satire to keep adults amused, while doing their best to get the adults to act like kids.

They can con a whole audience into doing pantomimes of circus animals. Kids delight in watching their parents prancing around imitating elephants and whooping cranes.

The only props are three packing trunks, three ordinary camping tents and a blanket. The actors wear no make-up. The "stage" is merely a roped-off section of grass.

Yet the Pied Pipers achieve realism.

In a recent performance at Cheney, Hoeger was pantomiming a traveling salesman driving a convertible, keeping an eye on the sky for rain.

He looked up at a cloudless expanse and exclaimed, "Just look at those clouds!"

"Wow!" said a small boy at ringside, who looked about ready to run for cover.

Hoeger, 24, got his start in dramatics with the Pied Pipers while a student at Hastings High School. He is now doing graduate work in cinematography at the University of Maryland.

The Pied Pipers never memorize a script. Their ideas come out of continual bull sessions between shows. Audience reaction determines whether a piece stays in.

Tom Camp, 22, of Kearney, is a law student at Stanford University, but finds touring with the Pied Pipers a welcome change each summer.

He likes working with kids because they're honest: "Kids are free in relating to you—adults are polite."

Other members of the troupe include Sherry Cole, 23, from Grand Island, and Mary Sturm, 25, of Chadron. Both graduated this spring from UNL with degrees in dramatics and movement.

This summer the traveling troupe is booked for 50 towns in Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas.

Wednesday, they'll be entertaining brown-baggers in the Lincoln Center garden in downtown Lincoln.

His ardor cooled soon after the wedding

DEAR ABBY: At the age of 44, I'm stumped. All my life I've worked with the public and thought I had seen and heard everything, but my own situation has me completely baffled.

After 12 years as a divorcee, I remarried. My problem is sex. When I dated my husband our sex was great, but as soon as we got married it started to go downhill, until now it is nothing. Six months of nothing, and I am ready to climb the walls.

I love my husband, Abby, and he claims he loves me. What is wrong? I am his fourth wife. His three previous wives told me that sex with him was wonderful—until they got married! They all admitted that they had cheated on him (one he caught in bed).

I don't want this to happen to me. Or me. When I mention seeing a doctor he flares up and throws a tantrum like a kid.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

He is 50, drives a truck and looks like a stud, but since our marriage he has been a dud. Help me.

"ME" IN N.J.
DEAR "ME": It's psychological. Some men are turned on only by illicit sex. But as soon as it becomes legal (and therefore no longer forbidden), it loses all its excitement and appeal. In extreme cases, they are unable to perform.

Psychotherapy could help. If your husband refuses, you have no choice but to climb the walls until you reach the top—and then go over to join his three former wives.

DEAR ABBY: I have been trying to teach my children, ages 4 and 6, NEVER to accept any kind of gift from a stranger.

My problem is that many times when we are on a bus, or shopping in some public place, some well-meaning person will admire my children and offer them candy, gum and even money.

something to help our cause?

ONE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'll try. Perhaps it hasn't occurred to all you generous, well-meaning people who "love children" and can't resist offering them goodies or money, that this is the technique used by child molesters who hope to gain a child's confidence in order to get him to "go for a ride" or "not tell" after improper advances have been made.

So if you love children, please don't offer them candy, money or gifts of any kind.

DEAR ABBY: One of the girls I work with is constantly talking about her sex life with her husband. (She's not a young kid, either.) Some of us are bored and others are embarrassed by her daily morning reports of what went on in her bedroom, but no one has the nerve to tell her

We know she reads your column, so if you can't think of a better solution, how about running this letter?

THE OFFICE GANG

DEAR GANG: If no one has the courage to speak up, you all deserve to be bored to embarrassment. I'll run your letter, not as a "solution" to your problem, but as a reminder that the meek are destined to put up with a lot.

But if you're declarer and don't see the East-West cards, the task is much more difficult. Let's see whether there's any way for declarer to discover — without using mirrors — that West has the doubleton queen of clubs.

West leads a trump and South notes that the only possible loser is a club. There are two obvious ways of avoiding the club loser: declarer can hope to find the missing hearts divided 3-3 and discard a club on dummy's fourth heart, or he can hope to find East with the queen of clubs, in which case finessing the jack will succeed.

There is no need to explore either possibility at once, so South wins the trump lead, ruffs a spade high in dummy, returns to his hand with a trump, ruffs another spade high, then leads all his trumps, producing this position:

Declarer cashes the K-Q-A of hearts. When West shows out, South learns that East has the jack of hearts among his last three cards.

Declarer then leads the A-8 of clubs, East following suit. It would now be foolish to finesse the jack, because East's one remaining card is known to be the jack of hearts and therefore cannot be the queen of clubs. So South goes up with the king of clubs, catches the queen and makes the contract.

Same sexes can't get license

Associated Press
A county judge in Nebraska does not have authority to issue a marriage license for two persons of the same sex who want to marry each other, the state Justice Department said Friday.
The opinion written by Asst. Atty. Gen. Marilyn Hutchinson was addressed to Dakota County Atty. Don A. Fitch.
She noted the Nebraska Supreme Court has never ruled on the specific question and "it is thus a case of first impression in this state."
Mrs. Hutchinson cited several similar cases from other states in reaching her conclusion.
In a Minnesota case the court held that the absence of an express legal prohibition against same-sex marriages did not evince a legislative intent to authorize them and they were prohibited.

"The Kentucky statutes relating to marriage did not include a definition of marriage to common usage, e.g., the union of a man and a woman," she said. "Thus the court upheld a judgment that two females were not entitled to have a marriage license issued to them."
"Marriage is also not defined in the Nebraska statutes," she said. "It is referred to a civil contract to which the consent of the parties capable of contract is essential."
She noted that the Nebraska Supreme Court has held that, "Where the Nebraska Legislature has not defined marriage to include a relationship between two persons of the same sex, it should be given its usual and well-recognized meaning."
"We have concluded that a county judge does not have authority to issue a marriage license to two persons of the same sex," she said, noting statutes require refusal of a license if there is any impediment in the way.

"The impediment in this case is the inability of two persons of the same sex to come within the definition of marriage," Mrs. Hutchinson said.
In an interview, Fitch said he sought the opinion at the request of a county judge.
"Apparently there was some sort of marriage between two persons of the same sex in Sioux City, Iowa," Fitch said. "There was a rumor that they got a marriage license in Nebraska, and while that was not true the judge asked what the situation would be if a license were requested in those circumstances."
"Of course no marriage license from Nebraska is good in any other state, anyway," Fitch added.

Fund cut to have 'little impact'

—Grand Island (UPI) — A consultant for the Region 12 Crime Commission said Friday the loss of about $5,000 in federal funds will probably have little impact on programs.
"Bob Harness, Grand Island, said the budget cut "should encourage local groups to be more selective about projects before agreeing to fund them, since the local share will have to be more."
The region, which includes Hall, Hamilton, Howard and Merrick counties, will get about $45,000 in federal funds, he said.

A new formula for distributing funds to regional crime commissions will go into effect Oct. 1, and the regions are in the process of assessing priorities.
Major projects under study include a consolidated communication system for Aurora and Hamilton County, an additional officer for the Merrick County sheriff's office, a

East gets 10th in sweepstakes

Lincoln East High School took 10th place in the sweepstakes category at the National Debate Tournament in Seattle, Wash.
Individual scorers coached by Randy McCutcheon, were:
Tom Lyon, sophomore, who took ninth in extemporaneous speaking.
Ursula Fritsch, junior, in the top 12 in prose and poetry.
Seniors Dave Lyon and Leo Chandler, the state debate champions, tied for 17th place in debating.
Four hundred schools vied for the sweepstakes honor.

Cleaning controls allergic reactions

St. Paul, Minn. (UPI) — Spring and summer flowers can trigger sneezing, hay fever and allergies.
"But State Health Commissioner Dr. Warren R. Lawson says many allergies start at home.

To help control allergic reactions, Lawson recommends frequent cleaning of walls, floors and ceilings to remove dust. Stick to soap and water, he says, because many non-soap cleaning products can cause reactions.

He also urges use of synthetic materials in such items as pillows, blankets and mattresses, limited use of scented products, including aerosols, and avoidance of cigarette, pipe or cigar smoke.

Summer hours begun by NWU

Nebraska Wesleyan University administrative offices will begin summer hours Tuesday.
The Smith-Curtis Classroom-Administration Building will be open from 7:30 a.m. to noon and 12:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. through Aug. 19.
Regular hours will resume Aug. 22. The switchboard will continue its regular 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. schedule.

Confidence

Probably nothing in the world expresses such perfect trust as a dog. He has absolute confidence in you, and if you are like most people, you never willingly let him down.
In fact, you may find yourself wishing that you had someone to rely on as your puppy does on you. But that's not the fate of humans. God gave man intelligence and ability so he could be self-reliant.
However, God gave us also the chance to find a faith to sustain us all through life. And He gave us His house — on earth — the Church — in which to begin to understand that faith.
Are you a regular member in that house?

"WHY DO THE HEATHEN RAGE?"
Psalms 2:11 and Acts 4:25

Webster says a heathen is "one who does not believe in the God of the Bible." They rage to get rid of God's Word. The Bible, its Laws and Commandments for men. An easy and sure way to get rid of the Bible is to neglect, quit reading and remain ignorant. Christ said: "TO HIM THAT HATH SHALL BE GIVEN, BUT FROM HIM THAT HATH NOT SHALL BE TAKEN AWAY THAT WHICH HE SEEMETH TO HAVE." Fail to use your possessions and opportunities and lose them.
Luther said: "THAT THE BIBLE IS GOD'S WORD AND BOOK. I PROVE THIS: ALL THINGS THAT HAVE BEEN, AND ARE, IN THE WORLD, AND THE MANNER OF THEIR BEING, ARE DESCRIBED IN THE FIRST BOOK OF MOSES ON THE CREATION; EVEN AS GOD MADE AND SHAPED THE WORLD, SO DOES IT STAND TO THIS DAY. INFINITE POTENTATES HAVE RAGED AGAINST THIS BOOK AND SOUGHT TO DESTROY AND UPROOT IT — KING ALEXANDER THE GREAT, THE PRINCES OF EGYPT AND BABYLON, THE MONARCHS OF PERSIA, OF GREECE, AND OF ROME, THE EMPERORS JULIUS AND AUGUSTUS: BUT NOTHING PREVAILED: THEY ARE GONE AND VANISHED, WHILE THE BOOK REMAINS, AND WILL REMAIN FOREVER AND EVER, PERFECT AND ENTIRE, AS IT WAS DECLARED AT FIRST, WHO HAS THUS HELPED IT — WHO HAS THUS PROTECTED IT AGAINST SUCH MIGHTY FORCES! NO ONE, SURELY, BUT GOD HIMSELF, WHO IS MASTER OF ALL THINGS, AND 'TIS NO SMALL MIRACLE HOW GOD HAS SO LONG PRESERVED AND PROTECTED THIS BOOK: FOR THE DEVIL AND THE WORLD ARE SORE FOES TO IT. I BELIEVE THAT THE DEVIL HAS DESTROYED MANY GOOD BOOKS OF THE CHURCH, AS, AFORETIME, HE KILLED AND CRUSHED MANY HOLY PERSONS, THE MEMORY OF WHOM HAS PASSED AWAY: BUT THE BIBLE HE WAS FAINT TO LEAVE SUBSISTING." Do you fear that unbelievers, scholars, false prophets, etc. will be able to do what such great men and powers have failed to do over such long periods of time? The late George Stewart likened those who fight against the Bible to a fool that went out to overturn Lookout Mountain with a crowbar, and those who feared the Bible would be destroyed to the bigger fool who put his shoulder against the other side of the mountain to keep it from being overturned!
Ecclesiastes 12:12-14: "AND FURTHER, BY THESE, MY SON, BE ADMONISHED: OF MAKING MANY BOOKS THERE IS NO END; AND MUCH STUDY IS A WEARINESS OF THE FLESH. LET US HEAR THE CONCLUSION OF THE WHOLE MATTER: FEAR GOD AND KEEP HIS COMMANDMENTS: FOR THIS IS THE WHOLE DUTY OF MAN. FOR GOD SHALL BRING EVERY WORK INTO JUDGMENT, WITH EVERY SECRET THING, WHETHER IT BE GOOD, OR WHETHER IT BE EVIL."

Everything about 'Seascape' great

By David Meisenholder

A group of lucky theater first-nighters began their 4th of July weekend with an ultimate celebration as the University of Nebraska Repertory Theater company burst sky high the Pulitzer Prize Drama "Seascape."

Edward Albee's comedy-drama as performed by this theater troupe is superb. It is flawless. It is professional. It is Art.

Although it was performed in the Studio Theater, the audience was seated in the sand dunes setting by the sea. Sandy Mueller's scene design is so realistic that one loses sense that he is in a theater building.

"Seascape" is all about life, reality, society, mankind, existence, death, the unknown, the future, the past. It is funny. It is serious. It is a total experience.

Acress Stephanie Kallos, who is known locally for her fine musicianship, is henceforth going to be recognized for her unusual acting talent. This young lady exudes that certain warmth to her audience, which is the key to performing in the theater. Needless to say, her turning, vocal and facial expression and her movements total together as this actress delivers every nuance of meaning in her lines.

She was assisted by actor Cliff Radcliff who also demonstrates his training in theater art. The two worked together for the two-hour evening in such harmony that they were no longer Kallos and Radcliff, but truly believable characters in this unbelievably entertaining play.

And to add to the fireworks of the evening, Ken and Paula Langdon played two of the most unusual characters perhaps ever seen on the stage. I wish not to reveal details about this pair as they are a major surprise of the evening. I will say that costume designer Michael Cesario outdid himself with the Langdons. And the Langdons outdid themselves in his costumes.

Again Jerry Lewis lighting was an asset as was the realistic sound effects by Tom Rawson. Professor William R. Morgan has directed a production which I feel will even satisfy those who say "You couldn't drag me to a play." Stephanie Kallos has a line which states exactly how I feel about this production. "Charlie, I love every bit of it."

"Seascape" continues along with the musical "Cabaret" in the Temple Building, 12th and R St., on various dates this summer — both being intermixed with two productions yet to be presented by the 1977 Nebraska Repertory Theater artists.

State seeks orders against Denver firm

By J.L. Schmidt

Star Staff Writer

A Denver-based firm which specializes in the sale of businesses is the subject of a suit filed in Lancaster County District Court by the Nebraska Attorney General's office.

The suit, filed Wednesday, names Wainwright Associates of Denver and Divide Co. as defendants. The firm has misled potential customers concerning the nature and extent of the services the defendants could provide. "The firm, according to the suit, has done business in Douglas, Lancaster, Scotts Bluff, Merrick, Dakota Valley, Nichols, Hall and Furnas Counties.

For a fee of $500, the firm agrees to provide certain goods and services to customers who want to sell their businesses, including, but not limited to custom brochures advertising the business to be sold, computer services locating compatible buyers, and lists of such buyers, according to the suit.

Other claims are that the defendants will provide a list of potential buyers, that they have an extensive market of such buyers, that approximately 200 custom printed advertising brochures will be provided for the sole purpose of sending them to the compatible potential buyers provided by the defendants, the suit alleges.

The State contends that the defendants have provided most of the customers with lists of less than 10 names of alleged potential buyers. The names listed are not persons interested in purchasing a business of the type, or at the location, or for the value of the customers business. The customers have received few, if any, responses from the persons listed and several of the persons represented by the defendants to be potential buyers could not be located at the addresses provided.

The suit asks the court to order the firm to stop falsely representing that the defendants have an extensive market of potential buyers, that the lists will be names of potential buyers and that the financial capabilities and investment interest of persons listed as potential buyers are comparable to the market value of the customer's business.

It further seeks to have the defendants provide a contract to customers which can be cancelled within 10 days after signing, maintain records which substantiate the accuracy of any past or future representations of the potential buyers that customers be advised of the number of actual potential buyers before any money is paid for services and that the firm file a semiannual report with the Attorney General containing detailed information of the defendant's business practices in the preceding six months.

The suit also asks that the defendants return to past customers any property or money which may have been obtained illegally, pay the court costs of the action and that the court retain jurisdiction over the parties and subject matter involved in the case.

Rocket damages parked car

A parked car sustained $400 in fire damage after a four-inch rocket was shot into the driver's-side window, police said.

The car, belonging to William D. Thompson, was parked outside Thompson's home at 1801 Brookhaven Drive.

Police were uncertain whether the Thursday night incident was intentional or an accident.

Gunny's fire mars equipment

An afternoon fire in the basement of the Gunny's Complex at 13th and Q Sts. did some damage to electrical equipment and created a lot of smoke, according to District Fire Chief Curtis Kadlick.

The complex houses stores and restaurants on three levels. We had some trouble getting people out of the building. They wanted to stay and shop, in spite of all the commotion," Kadlick said.

Fire reports list damage as considerable, but the chief didn't anticipate that any of the businesses would have closed.

Fire chars Lincoln basement

Fire gutted the basement of a home after a candle was left burning on top of a stereo, fire officials said.

The home of Leonard Hamis, 3910 Baldwin, also sustained considerable smoke and heat damage upstairs, officials said.

Hamis, son, the only person home when fire broke out shortly after 4 p.m., apparently left the candle on the downstairs stereo and went upstairs. Officials said the fire was under control in about 15 minutes.

Former Lincoln attorney dies in Valentine

Former Lincoln attorney William Matschullat, 72, died Friday in Valentine.

Matschullat practiced law for 37 years, many of which were spent in Lincoln. He was one of the court-appointed defense attorneys in the

Charles Starkweather murder trial in 1958.

Matschullat, who received his law degree from the University of Nebraska in 1930, was a member of both the Nebraska and Lancaster County Bar Associations. He was

Confiscated fireworks go up in smoke

Papillion (AP) — Authorities conducted an early Fourth of July fireworks display on a farm in southern Sarpy County Thursday.

They blew up confiscated fireworks with a wholesale cost of $4,822.

State fire marshal's agent Larry Wiles of Nebraska City estimated the retail value at about $12,000.

The 63 large boxes of contraband fireworks were confiscated when two men were arrested this week.

Sheriff Pat Thomas and Wiles supervised the pyrotechnic display on property owned by Fred Schneekloth, farmed by Sarpy County Sheriff's deputy Larry Helling.

The bombs and rockets were set off in groups of 8 to 10 boxes at a time.

Omahans Randy Lieber, 25, and Donald Millum, 27, have been charged with sale of illegal fireworks.

Former Lincoln attorney dies in Valentine

Former Lincoln attorney William Matschullat, 72, died Friday in Valentine.

Matschullat practiced law for 37 years, many of which were spent in Lincoln. He was one of the court-appointed defense attorneys in the

Charles Starkweather murder trial in 1958.

Matschullat, who received his law degree from the University of Nebraska in 1930, was a member of both the Nebraska and Lancaster County Bar Associations. He was
